Voke School Delays Plans For Addition

After listening Tuesday to officials of Greater Lawrence communities criticize the haste with which they were asked to react to plans for a $2,182,000 addition to the Regional Vocational Technical High School, the board for the school met briefly and voted to delay the project.

Chairman Fred Tarbox, Andover's representative on the regional committee, was not prepared to say just how soon the board would re-introduce the proposal, but indications were that it would be at least two to three months.

This action eliminated the need for a Special Town Meeting in Andover which had been scheduled for March 28. It eliminated also Andover would vote to reject the proposal at its regular Town Meeting Saturday. The chairman of the school committee there, Dr. Kenneth A. McKusick, had already been instructed by his board to speak against the Voke School article. One such defeat would make it necessary for the regional

A motion from Sidney P. White brought approval Monday of the town manager's appointment of Dr. Douglas Dunbar to the Andover Board of Health to fill a vacancy created by the death some weeks ago of Fay H. Elliott. Manager Bowen said he had not made the appointment sooner out of respect for Mr. Elliott.

Selectmen Roger Collins and Sidney P. White have been named co-chairmen for the town's annual May clean-up drive which is coordinated with the Founder's Day Celebration.

The Selectmen want the manager to begin demolition of the Shaw barn on the municipal parking lot as soon as possible. Manager Bowen said Monday that he favors holding off until the weather will permit immediate surfacing of the area cleared, but the board asked for early action. Approval for the project was voted at Town Meeting.

Rep. Arthur Williams of Andover was appointed recently to serve on the Engrossed Bills, Military Affairs, Taxation and Judiciary Committees of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Rep. William Longworth is serving on the Highways and Motor Vehicles Committees. Both 12th district representatives are also on the Advisory Council which meets to formulate Republican policies and programs.

Contractor, Architect Agree

High School To Open Sept. 1

The general contractor and the architect for the new senior high school building staked their corporate reputations Tuesday on the belief that they can have the new school, with exception of the gymnasium, ready for use on September 1, 1967.

Meeting with the town manager, the school building committee and school officials at Rolling Green Motor Inn for a "truth" session were spokesmen for the two key companies involved, along with representatives for sub-contractors.

Manager Richard Bowen and Building Chairman Robert McIntyre pressed the contractor for an "honest appraisal" of the situation. They discussed the various delays already involved on the project, particularly with the pouring of the roof, and stressed the importance of a straightforward answer for school officials who must plan fall schedules for a high school, two junior high schools and a number of sixth grades on the basis of the space that will be available to them at the beginning of the next term, or shortly afterward. McIntyre was so insistent that Ted Driscoll of E. H. Porter Co. finally said, "Look, what do you want me to say? Do you want me to say December... February? I'll say what you want, but we believe we can have the building substantially completed by September 1."

By "substantially", Driscoll explained that he means his firm can have the classroom portion of the high school ready for occupancy for the opening of school and in such a state by August 1 that the majority of the equipment can be moved in.

Driscoll admitted that the roof is a key problem and that if it is not in by April 1, the problem will be compounded. The roof was delayed in December when the weather was right because the roofing contractor was busy elsewhere. By the time he was free, wet weather set in. Driscoll said the roofer is now on standby notice, awaiting proper weather conditions for the pouring of concrete.

Society Opposes TH Demolition

The board of officers and directors of the Andover Historical Society has gone on record in opposition to destruction of the present Town Hall.

The Society has said it wishes to save the historic building, and feels its demolition to make way for a mall to front a new municipal office building would represent a loss to the town.

ABC Committee Meeting To Draft Plans For Students

Supported by a Town Meeting vote of 528 to 119, the Andover Committee for a Better Chance is virtually assured of School Committee approval for the plan to enroll 10 disadvantaged boys at the local high school next September.

School Chairman Louis Galbiati said in advance of Town Meeting that he would regard a simple majority as a sufficient indication of support, and he has since indicated to ABC officials that they can regard the program as all but technically authorized.

ABC Chairman Robert H. Klie said Wednesday that his executive board and the chairmen of standing committees will meet Monday to lay detailed plans for raising private funds to finance the program, locate a couple to serve as live-in supervisors for the boys enrolled, secure housing for some sort of dormitory arrangement and select the 10 boys that will come to Andover.

The ABC issue generated about the only broad debate held at Saturday's Town Meeting which drew just 732 of the more than 10,000 registered voters in the community. Much of this debate was focused on the proposal of Selectman William Stewart which led to RECEIVING A MEDAL for her father posthumously is Mary Ellen Currier, daughter of Capt. Gerald F. Currier who was killed in Vietnam last November 4. Mrs. Currier and Maj. Kenneth H. Montgomery U. S. Army, participated in the ceremony at Town Hall.

Medal Given Posthumously

A Purple Heart Certificate and engraved medal were awarded posthumously Wednesday to Capt. Gerald F. Currier of Andover who was killed in Vietnam last November 4 while commanding a Special Services company in front line action.

Receiving the medal were Capt. Currier's widow and his daughter, Mary Ellen.

The brief ceremony was held at Town Hall in the office of Elmer Ober, veterans' service agent, and the medal was presented by Major Kenneth H. Montgomery, U. S. Army, who is attached to the Boston College ROTC Unit.

Attending were Town Manager

Richard J. Bowen, Atty. Marco Pettoruto, Police Chief David Nicoll, William A. Doherty and members of the family.

Capt. Currier's death terminated a 12-year career with the Army, during which he completed the equivalent of a four year college education. He was a veteran of eight months service and two tours of duty in Southeast Asia, and Andover's first victim of the Vietnam conflict.

The young Green Beret Officer was born in Lawrence May 28, the son of James H. Currier and the late Mrs. Mary J. (Dolan) Currier. He began his military career at Fort Dix, N. J. after which he trained at an Army Finance School in Indiana. He had tours of duty in Texas and Japan.

In 1959 he attended the University of Washington in Seattle to prepare for work with Army intelligence. Following two years service in Germany, he then entered Officer Training School at Fort Benning, Ga. in 1962 and was later commissioned a second lieutenant. In 1963 he attended an Army language school in California and left from there to train allied troops in military tactics at the island of Formosa.

Club Announces Guest Program

Mel Ehrin, a keyboard comedian, will entertain at the November Club's guest night which is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. March 17 in the Underwood Room at Phillips Academy.

Mrs. Charles A. Currier, president, and Mrs. Preston H. Blake, president-elect are inviting members and guests for refreshments at the close of the program.

A little confidence in a person can often produce great results.

DeBell was graduated Scotch Plains (N.J.) High School in 1935, and received a Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering from Purdue University in 1940.

He began his Western career in April, 1941, as an engineer of manufacturing at the Kearny works, advancing to department chief of engineering of manufacture, in 1947.

As department chief he was selected to participate in the company's management training program. In May, 1951, he was assigned to engineering coordination on the NIKE project. He returned to Kearny as a manager of wage incentive in July, 1952.

He returned to New York in June, 1954, as an assistant manager of administration in the manufacturing division's area. In September, 1955, he was placed on a special assignment and enrolled in the University of Pennsylvania's Institute of Humanistic Studies. He completed the course, and was promoted to manager of the by-step shops at Hawthorne.

He became manager of the Merrimack Works in April, 1958, and assumed his present position in November of 1962.

Size Of Theft Is In Question

Andover police were called this week to investigate a reported theft of $100 from a locker at Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational and Technical High School.

Though an Andover youth had agreed with the report he had lost $100 from his locker, later told Officer Duncan that he was missing just three dollars.

The student said class started the $100 story and went along with it. Since the reports, however, that has carried large sums of money on other occasions, police are continuing their investigation.

WE Moving C. W. DeBell

Charles W. DeBell, director of manufacturing at Western Electric Co.'s Merrimack Valley Works and chairman of the Andover Industrial and Development Commission, will become general manager of WE's North Carolina works effective April 16.

William L. Voigt, presently director of merchandise and manufacturing services at the Valley works, will become director of manufacturing, replacing Mr. DeBell, effective April 1.

DeBell was graduated from Scotch Plains (N.J.) High School in 1935, and received a Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering from Purdue University in 1940.

He began his Western Electric career in April, 1941, in the engineer of manufacture organization at the Kearny works, N. J., advancing to department chief, engineer of manufacture, in March, 1947.

As department chief he was selected to participate in the company's management training program. In May, 1951, he was assigned to engineering coordination work on the NIKE project. He returned to Kearny as assistant manager of wage incentives in July, 1952.

He returned to New York in June, 1954, as an assistant manager of administration in the manufacturing division's eastern area. In September, 1955, DeBell was placed on a special company assignment and enrolled in the University of Pennsylvania's Institute of Humanistic Studies. Upon completion of the course, he was promoted to manager of the step-by-step shops at Hawthorne works.

He became manager of the equipment shops at the Merrimack Valley Works in April, 1958, and assumed his present position in November of 1962.

The Hammond Museum on Hesperus Avenue in Gloucester has opened its doors for spring tours, and will permit visitors to roam the medieval castle between 2 and 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays when weather permits.

Abbadia Mare, the former home of John Hays Hammond Jr., is now owned by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston. His Eminence, Richard Cardinal Cushing, trustee, gives visitors an opportunity to view rare priceless art treasures and architectural specimens. Without the discomforts of travel, one may visit medieval Europe and see treasures from France and Italy.

In the Great Hall of the castle, are precious and rare ecclesiastical pieces. The dimensions of the room are approximately 100 feet from end to end, 60 feet high and about 25 feet in breadth. The windows, which are stained glass were made in Rheims, and copied from the Cathedrals of Rheims and Chartres, two of the greatest Gothic cathedrals of the world. The great rose circular window is designed after the style of the 15th century.

On the left hand side of the Great Hall stands a very unique glass encrusted case. There is only one other example known, and is to be found in a collection in England. This chest came from a Buddhist temple in Burma. It contained sacred manuscripts. On it is depicted the figures of Burmese warriors and birds in glass. This chest traveled by some obscure way to Spain - possibly carried there by the Moors when they conquered Spain.

Of great interest is the 13th century fireplace from a castle in Central France. Two dogs are shown holding up the coat of arms and the faces of the master and mistress of the castle are carved on either side. The fireback was used early in the construction of chimneys to throw the heat out into the room. This fireback was probably made around 1420.

In front of the fireplace stands a chair with four eagles which is reputed to have come from the first Christian Church, St. John Lateran of Rome. It was used by the visiting Bishop during the mass.

On the left of the great hall is a small chapel containing two very fine candelabra of brass made in the latter half of the 14th century.

At the end of the great hall, over the stairs, is a very fine example of painting on wood made in 1440, representing Christ in the robes of a Greek priest. There is a tomb on the wall of a bishop who died in Rome a few years before Christopher Columbus came to America. In the center of the stairway is a cinerary urn which the former owner found in an excavation in Rome. It came from the house of an undertaker who lived in the 1st century after Christ.

Hammond wanted to develop in the Museum the idea of a church opening on a courtyard as in Southern France. In the courtyard at the castle are found various remnants of different periods of construction. In Europe you find all ages elbow to elbow, some architecture that was made before Christ next to a building of the 15th century. Hammond considered this mixture of the arts beautiful and tried to present the same idea in his castle.

Red Cross Launching '67 Fund

Someone in Andover turns to the Red Cross for help several times a day. This is the report of chapter officials here, now involved with the annual fund drive to support its program. The calls may involve a mother who has not heard recently from a son in Vietnam or a wife who needs to reach her husband in the war zone immediately because of a family emergency.

Red Cross services to the armed forces have increased shaply in the last few months as United States troop strength in Vietnam has been increased officially to more than 400,000 men.

Mrs. Benjamin Slade, chairman of service to the military families said this week that because of the distance involved, the program has become more complex. A case that might ordinarily be settled overnight, can now extend through an entire weekend, she explained.

There is the logistic problem of sending a message half way around the world, the complication of locating installations and the personnel who may be in the field and the sometimes primitive communications lines in battle zones in jungle warfare.

Yet, the Andover chapter not only has been able to keep up with requests, but it also has carried on its other services, largely through the help of volunteers. Since July 1966, services in a variety of areas have been offered by 170 volunteers, according to Mrs. Frank Santuccio, chairman of volunteers. In the two months of January and February alone, Mrs. Charles Howe's motor service corps has made 41 trips in transporting 22 patients.

Arthur E. Flynn, Massachusetts state representative for the Red Cross, noting that March is Red Cross month, reports that now, 50 years after the beginning of service to military families, about 34 cents of each dollar given to the Red Cross, "is allocated to aiding men in the service, their families here at home and veterans."

Flynn said that this service was begun in 1916, to aid the families of National Guardsmen called to service on the Mexican border. During the year 1966, financial assistance to servicemen and their families amounted to $124,687 in Massachusetts alone.

at Town Hall, after deciding unanimously upon the offer to be made for the area approved by the last Town Meeting as a site for a new central fire station.

Prior to its knowledge of the 20 foot easement agreement, the board had offered Giles $206,000 for the whole of the lots open. Their action this week, in effect, put a value of $11,000 on the easement strip.

Under the terms of the contract to be drawn, Giles will be responsible for demolishing the shell of the brick warehouse which stands on the frontage and for meeting certain grade requirements.

Giles agreed early Wednesday to the town's stipulation that the building be demolished prior to the date Andover actually takes title to the property, but soon after the morning session Giles reported that he could not legally proceed in this way.

He told the TOWNSMAN that because the mortgage on the property covers both the land and building, the building cannot be demolished until title is passed. Otherwise, the bank would be left with a mortgage on a non-existent building.

Giles said that an agreement can be drawn, however, which will permit him to demolish the warehouse after title is transferred. The change in procedure would not be said, alter the purchase price, which includes a sum to cover this expense. But it does mean that the contractor will have to schedule another meeting with the Selectmen to agree to new terms.

The board has scheduled a special meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday night at which it will consider, where on the property to locate the fire station and whether or not to put the police station there as well. Plans for the precise location of a new town office building somewhere on the present Town Hall block will also be considered.

Andover Girl In Cantorum

Miss Christine Joan Pendergast of Andover, a freshman at William Smith College, is a member of the Schola Cantorum of Hobart and William Smith Colleges that will make a spring tour of the South, March 18-27.

The group, under the direction of Prof. Lindsay Lafford, chairman of the music department of the colleges, will open its tour in Columbus, S. C., on Palm Sunday evening and sing in Palm Beach, Fla., Miami, Fort Lauderdale and Winter Park, Fla. It will present "The Passion of Our Lord According to St. Mark."

Miss Pendergast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stephen Pendergast of 64 Spring Grove Rd., is a graduate of Andover High School.

Society Meets At 8 Tonight

The Andover Historical Society will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at Amos Blanchard House, 97 Main St.

Alexander D. Gibson will speak on "Some Aspects of French Culture and Influence in New England." He has done extensive research on this subject.

The meeting is open to the public.

Club Raising Travel Funds

The club was organized in September, 1962 by Bob Baillie in the playroom of his home with just four couples attending. The first official class was held the following fall and 57 "students" were graduated in the spring of 1964. The organization now has 85 dues-paying members and will graduate a class of 30 on March 30.

They dance weekly on Friday nights at Central Elementary School.

Officials of the club are president, Michael Bergeron; vice president, Lynda Doherty and Tom Meyer; secretary, Janice Stewart; treasurer, Joanne Jackson; social chairman, Brenda Jackson; and Member at Large, Roger Jenkins; and adult advisors, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson.

Spokesmen for Perry, Shaw, Hepburn & Dean, architects, added to the definition of "substantial" by stating that this would mean workmen would still be involved with cleaning up detail work, correcting faults etc. This would not be the sort of work that would disrupt the school schedule and most of it could be done after hours, they said.

Driscoll reported that school officials could expect the gymnasium to be ready within six to eight weeks after completion of the classroom section.

There was unofficial skepticism voiced after the morning conference Tuesday, but both the manager and McIntyre officially accepted the commitment to the September 1 deadline.

The meeting was called because of the urgent need for giving school administrators some solid information upon which to base scheduling and curriculum plans for next fall.

The contractor and architect were summoned by letter.

In read, in part: "You are... directed to present, or cause to be presented a clear, concise, updated progress report on the construction of this building at our combined meeting scheduled for 14 March 1967 at the Rolling Green Motel. It is expected that a definitive answer shall be given as to the expected date of completion. No nebulous or theoretical answers will be acceptable. Realistic appraisals are necessary at this date because of the major educational planning program which is dependent on the result."

"It is expected that you will provide this (Building) Committee with a report on all actions taken to pursue the above directions to completion."

Persons with a medical history of hay fever, asthma or other allergies should consult a physician immediately when stung by a wasp, the Agriculture Department advises.

Town Meeting Briefs

Town Meeting approved a budget in excess of $6 million Saturday, which the Finance Committee has estimated will mean a $3 increase in the tax rate.

Stories related to articles voted are spotted through the paper, but brief mention is made here of others:

• There was unanimous approval for an article authorizing a $250,000 bond issue to finance purchase of conservation lands to give the town additional green areas and recreational space. It was the first major conservation appropriation in the history of the Town of Andover.

• Voters supported the Board of Selectmen and the manager in authorizing five new men for the police department. It was the only item on which the administration and the Finance Committee parted company.

• The budget for the school department was voted in the amount of $2,438,952. Most of the some $400,000 increase will be paid out in salaries for the 50 additional teachers it will take to handle increased enrollment and the opening of a second junior high school.

• An appropriation of $600,000 to cover the cost of land acquisition and construction for a new central fire station to be located on the Tyer warehouse property was voted, 379-51.

• The vote on the Bancroft Reservoir was unanimous. Approved was $600,000. The bids for the project are already in and the contract will be let within the next couple of weeks.

• Developers withdrew and/or defaulted on two controversial zoning articles that brought numbers of opponents to the all-day meeting. Both proposals sought changes that would have permitted construction of more than 190 apartment units in each of two locations off Elm Street and Haverhill Street.

• Donald I. Richmond of Kenilworth withdrew a private article in which he sought a zoning change to permit a 28-unit apartment development off Burnham Road in an area already approved for construction of 24 single homes.

A number of residents from the area spoke against the rezoning and for preservation of the wooded area untouched. Richmond told voters that his apartment plan would preserve the stand of pines on the knoll bordering the railroad track, and was in fact developed out of his concern for conservation. His plan had approval of the planning board.

The article was withdrawn to give Richmond an opportunity to draw up a legal agreement which would attach a covenant to the land restricting its future use for more than 28 apartments. He plans to come to another Town Meeting.

Meanwhile, the conservation commission is looking into the desirability of using part of its appropriation for acquisition of the acreage.

• George Snyder former playground supervisor, withdrew two private articles proposing elimination of the job of the recreation director and the full-time maintenance man for recreation department.

He said he had been advised the power to make such a change is vested in the town manager, rather than Town Meeting.

Snyder asked from the floor that Recreation Director Leslie Bartow state whether or not he has received remuneration from other than the Town of Andover for recreation work since he has been in town employ. Manager Richard Bowen said this question should properly be put to him and that as far as he knew, the answer was "No."

Bowen objected to the fact that the moderator permitted Snyder's remarks relative to an article that was not introduced for action.

Celery Flavor Captured In Oil

Celery salt and dehydrated celery products may be given more "fresh" celery aroma and flavor because of a new process developed by utilization scientists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

They have found a way for the first time to recover the essential oil from fresh celery, using cull leaves, ribs, and stalks that are now wasted in the harvesting and preparation of celery for the fresh market.

Oil from the fresh celery is more potent than that now obtained from celery seeds. This new, more flavorful celery oil can add a fresher flavor to celery salt and dried celery products.

voting of the question by secret ballot. The fact that ballot boxes were on the platform when Town Meeting began would indicate that such a move was anticipated.

Phillip K. Allen, newly-elected chairman of the Board of Selectmen, announced at the outset that the board had agreed earlier that its members should take independent positions on the controversial, race-related article. Then he, Roger Collins and Robert A.
 Waters individually spoke in favor of ABC. Selectman Sidney P. White made no statement.

Secret Ballot

Selectman Stewart also took no public position and instead moved that a ballot vote be taken.

This position was challenged by Rev. A. Graham Baldwin, former student minister at Phillips Academy who quoted from the Declaration of Independence and President Abraham Lincoln in an attempt to muster a negative vote on the secret ballot question. "I am not afraid that the techniques of democracy will die," he said, telling voters, "it will be a great affirmation of the spirit of democracy if we are willing to stand up and be counted."

His view was challenged by speakers, among them Town Counsel Frederic S. O'Brien and Town Manager Richard J. Bowen.
 O'Brien, who said he favored ABC, explained that there were too many chances for pressure that "have nothing to do with racial prejudice."

The manager, who also spoke in support of ABC, told Town Meeting, "Anybody has a right to stand up and say how he feels, but if he doesn't want to, he has a right not to (stand)."

Repeating his previous view that the School Committee should not have placed the question before Town Meeting, said that what voters had to consider was a "formality" - "nothing more or less than an affirmation of the opening prayer, the silent meditation and the salute to the Flag."

Advice Given

Manager Bowen said he had been advised not to involve himself in the ABC discussion, but he said that he could "hide behind his title" of "administrator" and avoid the responsibility of leadership.

Just one speaker spoke in opposition to the ABC program itself.

Another negative point of view was expressed by Atty. James H.
 Eaton III, a member of the planning board. Eaton, commenting on the

Theologian Will Discuss Ecumenism At South Church

Rev. Charles Von Euw, Cardinal Cushing's personal theologian and representative throughout the Ecumenical Council will give a lecture at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 18, in Fellowship Hall at South Church. His topic will be "The History of Ecumenism and The Hope For Tomorrow."

Father Von Euw is a native of Boston and a product of Boston College and Gregorian University from which he received his degree in Oriental Theology. He was ordained in Rome and, although still a young man, he was selected by the cardinal to be his "peritus" or expert theologian at each session of the Vatican Council. He is professor of patrology (the Fathers) and ecumenics at Saint John's Seminary in Brighton where all regular clergy for the Archdiocese of Boston are trained. Father Von Euw is also head of the Archdiocesan Ecumenical Commission and chairman of the board at Packard House.

In his lecture Fr. Von Euw will trace the development of the ecumenical movement from its birth in Protestantism around the turn of the 20th Century and the exciting possibilities for the future. Fr. Von Euw is a unique commentator on the movement because of his background in eastern religions and his study and expertise on the ancient fathers of the church. His knowledge of the Eastern Orthodox and Eastern Catholics gives him insights as to future bridges that might be built theologically and organizationally within Christendom.

South Church, together with the Interfaith Living Room Dialogue Committee, invites all interested persons to attend the lecture which begins at 8 p.m.

A Delicate Balance

School, school building and municipal officials listened politely Tuesday as the architect and general contractor for the new senior high school staked their reputations upon a commitment to complete the brick and concrete structure on schedule, despite delays that have put some phases of the project weeks behind.

To say that there was skepticism is an understatement. Some said immediately, privately, that they simply do not believe the September 1 deadline can be met.

They may well be right. Perhaps it would be foolhardy of school administrators to plan for next fall without building a measure of flexibility into the first semester program.

But in all fairness, the town must now give the architect and the contractor every opportunity to prove that their word is good. Whatever pressures are brought to bear upon them should be brought by the officials directly involved and by the clerk of the works who represents the interests of the people. Self-appointed experts who clamber over the site and through the building, making public and street-corner statements along the way, will not resolve the problems that exist and they will most certainly create new ones in the process.

And there have been problems with this school, problems in the planning and problems with the construction, problems that have plagued two town managers, at least three School Committees, the building committee and three Town Meetings. There will be more before the job is finished.

If they are to have a minimal effect on the outcome, the architect and the contractor must be given room to breathe and clear direction on how to proceed within the limits of the budget from those directly responsible.

This does not mean that citizens and taxpayers should not interest themselves in the school and whether or not it is going up according to specifications.

It simply means that too many cooks can delay the serving of the brew.

A Formality

The School Committee wanted Town Meeting to become "involved," to express its opinion about whether or not the school department should agree to give ten disadvantaged youths A Better Chance by offering them an opportunity to study at Andover High School.

Now the Committee has the guidance it sought. ABC has been approved overwhelmingly, though not unanimously by considerably more than the simple majority which Chairman Louis Galbiati said he felt should constitute a directive. Since Town Meeting did not quibble about the question of space, it would appear that the townspeople agree with ABC supporters who contend that the enrollment of just ten additional high school students in Andover cannot pose a significant problem, even if the opening of the new senior high school building is delayed until mid-term.

Having asked the public to participate in a policy decision which it could legally have made without consultation, the School Committee is now obligated to accept the people's view of ABC unless it is confronted with some overpowering reason for doing otherwise.

The question of a policy vote has become a formality.

Compact Comment

If you want to argue about the validity of the statement that the use of a secret ballot in an open forum such as Town Meeting is traditional in America, you can probably make a case for both positive and negative points of view.

It is impossible to quarrel, however, with those who believe that in this democracy the people have the right to vote an issue in secret if that is their will.

Nevertheless, one cannot help but believe that our democracy will be more perfect when Americans are no longer reluctant to stand openly for — or against — such "sensitive" issues as those raised by the proposal involving the possible education of ten minority students in Andover.

Some 25 merchants in the Andover Chamber of Commerce met last week to draft a plan for combatting local teenage shoplifters, increasingly active in downtown stores. . . . And we're concerned about outside influences!

Nursery Schools For Retarded

An entirely new concept in the training and development of mentally retarded children is in progress in Massachusetts and its success is attracting international attention.

The program, first of its kind in the country, provides clinical nursery schools for mentally handicapped children three to seven years of age.

At present more than 440 such youngsters are attending 36 clinic schools in communities throughout the state. Plans are underway to more than double the schools and accommodate as many retarded children in the tender age bracket as possible.

Training the children at the clinic schools has brought some astonishing results.

Ten percent upon reaching seven have been able to enter regular public grade school with children their own age.

Seventy percent are ready for special public school classes.

Twelve percent enter classes for the emotionally disturbed.

Eight percent remain at home or enter institutions.

And those who do enter institutions have the great advantage of knowing how to dress and feed themselves, use toilet facilities and develop the ability to communicate with others.

"We are immensely proud of our special program for retarded children," Governor John A. Volpe said. "I am determined to have as many of these pre-school nursery clinics functioning as are necessary to fully develop this all important work."

Clinics are being organized in communities having six or more such youngsters capable of attending. Area clinic-schools for smaller towns where fewer than six such children live are being formulated.

Transportation is supplied at no cost to the parents.

Classes are limited to 12 children. There is a teacher and teacher's aide for every group. Frequently the staffs are larger.

Daily activities include experimental play periods with use of toys engineered to develop eye-hand coordination, stimulate and sharpen sensory perception and foster self-expression.

Dancing and drawing are taught, social manners developed, and there are trips into the community to widen the youngsters' experience.

And for youngsters unable to attend because of physical handicaps, a special home training program is being developed where teachers visit the children daily. Teachers also counsel parents on how to work with their children with more knowledge and understanding.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN
A long history of pride in the civic dignity of the human spirit suffered a set back at Andover's town meeting last Saturday.

Our most precious heritage, so eloquently eulogized in article 36, had already begun to die a little twenty articles before. What died in article 16 was a due regard for democratic rights.

In the fire-station article, democracy was defeated by official design. What was defeated was the unalienable right of the people to know just what they are buying with their money.

It is a shattering experience to witness otherwise honorable men subvert principle for an authoritarian expediency coolly calculated to spare their own pride. Yet that is why voters were deprived of control over the use of their own funds.

But having been pre-conditioned by the dire threat of a $6 increase in the tax rate, the few voters present, out of false gratitude for the fictitious drop in the threatened increase, were ready to buy everything offered — and no questions asked.

Whenever freedom dies, even a little, the dignity of the human spirit, to which we all love to pay homage with our lips, also dies a little along with it — an easy victim of intransigent officialdom.

Klebanoff, assistant to the director of the Department of Mental Health, who coordinates the program enjoys talking about some of the children who have been to the clinic-schools — children like the twin sisters whose I.Q. tested at 50, way under the average range of 90 to 110. In less than a year, one sister tested at 90 and her twin at 100. Both entered the regular first grade at age seven.

Then there was Johnny. He was brought to a clinic by his parents who had been told he was retarded . . . "we realized," recounts Dr. Klebanoff, "after testing that he was an unusual case. Physical examinations we ordered showed he was actually a dwarf with normal, average intelligence. The clinic saved that youngster and his parents from what could have been years of misery."

"Our clinics operate on the fact that these youngsters are human beings who have a potential for growth and development like all other youngsters born into this world. Massachusetts pioneered in a concept that has since become an accepted fact by most in the professional world," Dr. Klebanoff said.

Representatives from Mexico, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium and India have visited the clinics to study, analyze and absorb the accomplishments. Communists Poland and Czechoslovakia have forwarded letters seeking information on how the clinic-schools are conducted.

Cooperating closely with the Commonwealth in the unique program is the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Children, Inc., and also similar "parent group" associations throughout the state. Such groups began, with the cooperation of the state, the vast majority of the clinic-schools.

The Greater Boston Association launched the first clinic of this nature for pre-school retarded children in 1953. The state officially entered the picture in 1955 when the Department of Mental Health began providing a teacher for the few then existing clinics.

When last August, the General Court passed legislation, signed into law by Governor Volpe with an emergency provision, requiring the state to establish and maintain such community nursery schools.

Commissioner of Administration Anthony DeFalco, with an eye for efficiency and action, decided with Governor Volpe, that the state should assume the full financial responsibility for the successful clinics already operating, instead of establishing new ones.

"These local people have been doing a remarkable job with state assistance, and we will, of course, continue along these lines. It's the only practical approach to achieving the Governor's goal of a comprehensive program for these youngsters," DeFalco explained.

The Administration's decision was greeted with joy by the "parent groups." William Perry, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Association said: "Such implementation of the law is a major milestone in the development of services for retarded children in Massachusetts. It is providing a humanitarian, as well as practical approach. It would be wonderful if the rest of the country followed this state's example," Perry said.

Each clinic costs $13,830 to operate with an average cost of $152 for each child. Clinics are free.

Local groups usually provide quarters for the clinics except where public facilities are used.

 school to reconsider and present a new proposal. These are the terms of the law regulating the regional school district, conversely, once the towns receive a request for capital expenditure funds from the district board, they must act to disapprove the request within 30 days or pay their share of the costs on a proportional basis.

Representatives of the communities involved were invited to a Tuesday dinner meeting at the regional school as guests of its culinary arts department.

Some of those attending, particularly spokesmen for Andover and North Andover, questioned Tarbox and Director James Booth closely about potential operating costs for the expanded school and about the details of the curriculum contemplated.

During this exchange, Chairman Tarbox admitted that perhaps his committee was guilty of "jumping the gun" with its plans because of the sudden realization that the school is already "busting at the seams." He said that 535 students are enrolled this year for the first of two day-time sessions and that 180 qualified boys were turned away this fall because they could not be accommodated in the 600-student building. He added that enrollment is running well ahead of projections made in advance of the school's opening 18 months ago. In the discussion, he reported that Andover has 39 boys attending the school or about 6% of the day enrollment. This is one percent more than was expected, Tarbox added that some 180 adults from Andover attend night classes, the largest percentage representing a single community.

On the basis of this participation, Booth said that Andover could expect its share of the proposed construction budget to run $4091 for interest in the first year and $7159 for interest and principle in the second.

Center Offers Study Assist

Officials of the Andover Youth Center have offered to cooperate and assist the Board of Selectmen with an Andover recreation study proposed prior to the town election by Selectmen Robert A. Watters.

In a letter signed by Frank Markey, secretary, the Center's board said the town must give youth a year-round program of recreational and cultural activities. The Center itself has a membership of 928.

The recreation study committee is to be appointed by the town manager in the near future. He has asked each Selectman to suggest three potential members for consideration.

It's a good rule, when driving an automobile, not to take evergreen light for granted.

Parents Honor Central Teachers

The Central School PTA held its annual Teacher Recognition Night Wednesday, climaxing a day honoring Principal Catherine M. Barrett and her professional staff.

Correspondence for the occasion, commenting on the high quality of the Central staff and its work, was received from U. S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe, a former Andover public school principal, State Supt. of Schools Owen Kiernan and from the Andover Board of Selectmen.

Selectman Roger Collins, secretary, read the message sent by his board. Kiernan's message came by telegram.

Commissioner Howe sent a letter which was framed and presented to Miss Barrett on behalf of the teaching staff. Commenting that he has fond memories of his association with Andover, Howe wrote: "It is entirely fitting that parents and others with a stake in Andover's educational system gather to express appreciation to Miss Barrett and her colleagues. They are the people who give honor to the word "teacher." In a variety of ways, they motivate, inspire and encourage students to achieve knowledge and understanding, and at the same time prepare them for responsible, satisfying adulthood.

He continued: "This country has a profound commitment to raise the quality of education in every school across the land. No one has a better understanding of this commitment than our classroom teachers, and no one is in a better position to bring it to fruition."

Among those on the PTA program were Supt. Edward I. Erickson and the key speaker, Asst. Supt. Vaughn I. Clapp.

Mrs. Paul Cronin, vice president, conducted the meeting in the absence of William Ash, president.

During the evening a swivel rocker chair and magazine rack were presented to the staff and two record players to the school itself. Miss Barrett was given a letter opener.

Each teacher was given a recognition day corsage early Wednesday.
